What should I expect over the course of the semester?

- Group “Check-ins”
  (Fridays at 9:30 a.m.)
  - Brief meetings (via Zoom) to connect with your fellow boot campers to discuss goals, successes and challenges
  - We’re planning for a “hybrid” model as the semester progresses, allowing for both remote participation and number of on-campus seats in Boylan Hall
  - Learn about the diverse work of your colleagues and keep each other on track

- Writing Feedback Sessions
  (3 times per semester on Fridays at 12 noon)
  - Two volunteers at each of the feedback sessions will share a selection of their work-in-progress, with a request for feedback on selected issues
  - The group will share general reactions and provide specific feedback focusing on the writers’ requests
  - Not all writers will be able to share their work in this context over the course of the semester, but we hope it spurs additional ‘outside class’ peer feedback and accountability partnerships
  - Writing feedback sessions are scheduled for Sept 24, Oct 29, and Dec 3

- Writing/Research “Sprints”
  (Peer-moderated)
  - For those finding they need a more structured push during a defined window of time to keep those distractions at bay

- Online “notebook” to keep focused on your goals and your progress
  - Set semester-long objectives and daily/weekly goals and log your accomplishments
  - Here are some examples of what it looks like

- A network of collegial support, accountability and friendly faces!
