Confronting Precarious Work: Toward A New Social Contract

Arne L. Kalleberg '71, is Kenan Distinguished Professor of Sociology at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. He received his BA from Brooklyn College and his Ph.D. from the University of Wisconsin-Madison in 1975. He was given a Distinguished Alumnus Award by Brooklyn College in 2009. Kalleberg has published more than 100 articles and chapters and eleven books on topics related to the sociology of work, organizations, occupations and industries, labor markets, and social stratification. His most recent book is Good Jobs, Bad Jobs: The Rise of Polarized and Precarious Employment Systems in the United States, 1970s-2000s (Russell Sage Foundation, 2011). He is currently working on projects that examine the growth of precarious work in Asia and institutional determinants of inequality in the United States. He served as Secretary of the American Sociological Association from 2001 to 2004 and as President in 2007-08.
