European Anti-Semitism: Past and Present

Interior of Dohany Street Synagogue, Budapest, Hungary

David Berger, who served for many years as Broeklundian Professor of History at Brooklyn College and at the Graduate Center of CUNY, is currently Ruth and I. Lewis Gordon Professor of Jewish History and Dean at the Bernard Revel Graduate School of Jewish Studies at Yeshiva University. A past President of the Association for Jewish Studies, his areas of expertise include medieval Jewish history, Jewish-Christian relations, anti-Semitism, contemporary Judaism, and the intellectual history of the Jews. His book The Jewish-Christian Debate in the High Middle Ages was awarded the John Nicholas Brown Prize by the Medieval Academy of America. He is the editor of History and Hate: The Dimensions of Anti-Semitism, and many of his studies have recently been collected in two volumes—Persecution, Polemic, and Dialogue: Essays in Jewish-Christian Relations and Cultures in Collision and Conversation: Essays in the Intellectual History of the Jews.
