Stephen Vider is the Cassius Marcellus Clay Postdoctoral Fellow in the History of Sexuality at Yale University. He completed his Ph.D. in History of American Civilization at Harvard University in 2013. His current book project, Interior Relations: Queering Domesticity and Belonging After World War II (under contract with University of Chicago Press) tracks how domestic practices and ideals shaped gay identities, relationships, and politics from 1945 to the present.
