Trans Activism Before, During, and After Stonewall

Victoria Cruz is a LGBTQ rights activist and a retired counselor for survivors of all forms of violence, with a focus on violence within relationships. Victoria is a trailblazer, fearless advocate for her community and a mentor and model for many trans and gender non-conforming people in New York City and across the globe. A contemporary of activists Marsha P. Johnson and Sylvia Rivera, she is featured in the 2017 documentary The Death and Life of Marsha P. Johnson. She is a veteran of the Stonewall Riots that launched the modern LGBTQ civil rights movement.

María R. Scharrón-del Río is Interim Associate Dean of the School of Education & Professor of the School Counseling Graduate Program. A predoctoral Ford Foundation and APA's Minority Fellowship Program (MFP) fellow, they received their Ph.D. in clinical psychology from the University of Puerto Rico. After their clinical internship at the Harvard Medical School, they worked as an assistant child psychologist at the Washington Heights Family Health Center, a primary-care clinic that serves a predominantly Latinx immigrant community in NYC.
