William Edelglass
Marlboro College

What Counts as Philosophy?
Rationality and Practice in
Buddhist Traditions

Tuesday, September 20
12:45 PM
Woody Tanger Auditorium
Brooklyn College Library

Many Buddhist thinkers regard reasoned inquiry as a necessary step on the path to awakening. William Edelglass will explore how attending to Buddhist thought can help us rethink the practice of philosophy and how it is taught.

William Edelglass is Professor of Philosophy and Director of Environmental Studies at Marlboro College in Vermont. He has published widely in Indian and Tibetan Buddhist philosophy, environmental philosophy, and 20th-century European philosophy.