Course Description

In this class we will work our way through some ‘classic’ works in the history of philosophy that showcase the nineteenth century philosophical doctrines of idealism and existentialism; especially the works of Schopenhauer and Nietzsche. We will study these classic works of modern philosophy in detail, examining them for their arguments and content, their style and rhetoric, and for what they teach us about what remains constant in philosophy and what changes.

If you have any questions about the class, please contact Prof. Chopra at: SChopra@brooklyn.cuny.edu.